community or home life just by changing the question talk creative problem solvers and they will often tell you the key to their success is asking a different question take debbie steinberg a social entrepreneur who created goldieblox the idea came from a friend who complained about too few women in engineering and sterling wondered aloud why are all the great building toys made for boys or consider nobel laureate richard thaler who asked would it change economic theory if we stopped pretending people were rational or listen to jeff bezos whose relentless approach to problem solving has fueled amazon's exponential growth getting the right question is key to getting the right answer great questions like these have a catalytic quality that is they dissolve barriers to creative thinking and channel the pursuit of solutions into new accelerated pathways often the moment they are asked they have the paradoxical effect of being utterly surprising and instantly obvious for innovation and leadership guru hal regersen the power of questions has always been clear but it took some years for the follow on question to hit him if so much depends on fresh questions shouldn't we know more about how to arrive at them that sent him on a research quest ultimately resulting in including over two hundred interviews with creative thinkers questions are the answer delivers the insights regersen gathered about the conditions that give rise to catalytic questions a breakthrough insights and how anyone can create them 100 questions answers about hiv and aids provides answers to the most common questions asked by patients with hiv and aids and their partners and their family members written by an internationally recognized hiv expert from johns hopkins university with a commentary by two hiv positive patients this is an invaluable
